

New Contemporaries 1974

Camden Art Centre

When Young Contemporaries disbanded after 1970, a group of alumni including Gillian Ayres, Basil Beattie, Paul Huxley and William Tucker – now tutors at institutions across London - looked to the next generation to re-start the exhibition programme. In 1974 the first New Contemporaries exhibition took place.

The first two iterations were held at Camden Art Centre and the catalogues for these shows are available within their archives. Currently we only have the participant information for 1975, but once restrictions are lifted we will update the 1974 details.

New Contemporaries 1976

Royal Academy (painting and sculpture)

Acme Gallery 'Live Show' (performance, moving image, installation)

In 1976 no catalogue was produced for the painting and sculpture work shown at Royal Academy, and only a very few hand-produced catalogues for the additional 'Live Show' at Acme Gallery. The information provided below is regarding the Live Show only.

If anyone was part of the Royal Academy exhibition in 1976, or has any information regarding the sculpture and painting New Contemporaries exhibition, please get in touch: info@newcontemporaries.org.uk
